

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS TO THE MEMORY OF THE WORLD REGISTER FOR LATIN AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN 2014

The Memory of the World is the collective, documented memory of the peoples of the world – their documentary heritage – which, in turn, represents much of the world's cultural heritage. It reflects the evolution of thought, of discoveries and of achievements by human society. It is the legacy from the past for the worldwide community, present and future. (1.1.1 – Guidelines)

World documentary heritage is viewed as a whole, i.e., as the fruits over time of communities and cultures that do not necessarily coincide with present-day nation-states. Therefore, the Program can recognize, for example, the documentary heritage of ethnic minorities living within nations, or unique cultures that span the political boundaries of a number of modern-day nations, or match them only partially. (2.2.2 – Guidelines)

The Program also covers documentary heritage throughout recorded history, from papyrus scrolls or clay tablets through films, sound recordings or digital files. Nothing is left out because of being too old or too new. This perspective toward time is sharpened by the growing awareness of what has been lost, especially during the 20th century, and the importance of timely intervention to safeguard what remains. (2.2.3 – Guidelines)

Consequently, the concept of the Memory of the World Program is that the world's documentary heritage belongs to the whole world, must be fully preserved and protected for all and, with all due respect for cultural habits and practices, must be accessible for all in an ongoing, un-hindered manner. (2.3.1 – Guidelines)

The mission of the Memory of the World Program is to raise consciousness and enhance protection of the world's documentary heritage and make it universally, lastingly accessible. (2.3.2 – Guidelines)

Ongoing access is the goal of preservation: without this, preservation makes no sense, except as an end in itself. The Memory of the World Program encourages universal, democratic access to documentary heritage as a whole, with all due respect to cultural constraints and specific considerations involving copyright, but without artificial limitations. Even if perfection is unattainable, it is legitimate to try. This also agrees with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of the United Nations (1948) and the International Pact on Civil and Political Rights of the United Nations (1966). All individuals are entitled to their identity and, consequently, to access their documentary heritage and to know that it exists and where it is located. (3.4.1 – Guidelines)

REGULATIONS FOR APPLICATIONS TO THE MEMORY OF THE WORLD REGISTER FOR LATIN AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN

The Regional Committee for Latin America and the Caribbean (MOWLAC), of the Memory of the World Program (MOW) of UNESCO, pursuant to its Guidelines, has the purpose of encouraging special protection for documentary collections in the countries of Latin America and the Caribbean, of regional significance, including preservation and access. Accordingly, MOWLAC invites custodians to submit their candidacies (document or set of documents, from archives, libraries, or audiovisual collections, any genre or support medium) for inclusion in the “Memory of the World Register for Latin America and the Caribbean”. The Guidelines for the MOW/UNESCO Program, in Spanish and English, are available at the MOWLAC Website - <http://mowlac.wordpress.com/biblioteca/>. For this purpose, it is hereby ordered:

1. PURPOSE

1.1 - To establish norms to conduct the annual selection process for candidacies of documents or sets of documents – from archives or libraries, text (handwritten or printed), audiovisual (film, video, sound recording), iconographic (photography, engraving, design) or cartographic, on a conventional support medium or not – per member country in the Region, to incorporate in the “Memory of the World Register for Latin America and the Caribbean”.

1.2 - Supranational applications presented jointly by individuals or entities, public or private, from two or more countries, shall not be computed in the number of candidacies for each country.

2.2. - Candidacies of sets of documents from archives must respect the limits of the respective fond or collection, so their organic wholeness can be identified. In the case of candidacies presented as a group, these requirements will be important, taking into consideration the constituent parts of the proposed set of documents.

3. QUALIFICATION

3.1 - Candidacies may be submitted, individually or in groups, by individuals or entities, under public or private law. The possibility of submitting joint candidacies, by more than one individual or entity, is intended to encourage exchange among persons and institutions, making it possible to submit several different fonds or collections linked by common themes, or when segments of a given fond or collection are in the possession of different depositaries.

3.2 - Each individual or entity, public or private, may submit only one application, although they may also belong to a group that submits another application collectively.

3.3 - No application will be accepted that comprises the entire collection of an archive or library from a public or private custodial institution, when that candidacy includes various fonds or collections.

3.4 - To formalize the application, it is mandatory to use the MOW-LAC Nomination Application Form (Attachment II hereto).

3.5 - Attachment III is mandatory for archival materials and must be completed in accordance to ISAD(G).

3.6 - The MOW-LAC Nomination Application Form must be completed in Spanish and English, the official languages for MOWLAC.
